DOCKET CONTROL

I am a consumer, owner of SSVEC CO-OP and ex employee and very angry about the fact that they want to ruin the landscape and view of the Huachuca area, to put a new transmission line up to serve the Sonoita and Elgin area for future growth, this CO-OP is suppose to be that a CO-OP not an investor owned electric company like they pretend to be, they should listen to the majority of the owners of the CO-OP, which is to rebuild the existing line where is currently located already. The current distribution line feeding these areas are due for rebuilding anyhow. It just make good sense to build the new line in the existing easement with the transmission and distribution on the same pole, which is called underbuilt distribution, they wont need to create a new easement across pristine land and cause an eyesore for thousands of people who moved to this area for the views. I hope you look at the plans they have and keep in mind the views of the consumers who live in the area, regardless of the outcome I hope you look at the other options that are available before approval. THANKS
